Note: Last year you listed the conference under "College Conference of Illinois". I'm aware of the problems with our long, unwieldy names, but I believe it would be better to list it under "CCIW" or to abbreviate the names of the two states.

COLLEGE CONFERENCE OF ILLINOIS AND WISCONSIN

BLOOMINGTON, ILL. (May 17)--Carthage College's championship team dominated the first College Conference of Illinois and Wisconsin all-star baseball team with five spots on the 10-man first team and two on the second team.

The team was chosen by a vote of coaches of member schools, with coaches not being permitted to vote for their own players.

Named to the first team from Carthage were pitcher Dennis Kessel, infielders Craig Deaton and Dan Schmidt and outfielders Bill Heinkel and Tom Richards.

No players received the maximum possible eight votes for the first team. Receiving seven votes were Tom Messmer, Augustana pitcher; Erif Pfautsch, Illinois Wesleyan second baseman; Keith McDonald, North Park second baseman; Dwaine Hoff, Elmhurst outfielder; Deaton and Heinkel.

Infielders and outfielders were not designated by specific positions. Coaches simply voted for the four infielders and three outfielders they thought were the best in the conference.

Every league team except Carroll was represented on one of the two teams.
